HOOVER BACKS COOLIDGE

Supports President as Candidate—Has Free Rein in Flood District

Washington—If there lingered any doubts as to President Coolidge's esteem for Herbert Hoover, it has been dispelled here by the dispatch of the secretary of commerce to the Mississippi flood area.

Everybody recognizes that a crisis frequently creates an opportunity to a public man to develop political strength.

If, as has been suggested, Mr.

Coolidge was nettled by the growing popularity of Mr. Hoover, there might have been reason to send some other cabinet officer to the scene—at least some one like the secretary of war

whose name has not been linked with a presidential boom.

Mr. Hoover has insisted both publicly and privately that he believes Mr.

Coolidge not only should be re-nominated but re-elected. It has, however,

been generally assumed here that if per chance Mr. Coolidge decided not to run, he would favor the selection of

Mr. Hoover as the Republican nomi-

nee. In fact, Mr. Hoover's friends have hoped that the way would come to pass in 1928. Certainly, Mr. Coolidge has given the secretary of commerce

free rein and he has every confidence

in him.

AMENDS FOR REPORT

In sending Mr. Hoover to New Orleans, the president also demonstrated that he is not afraid to place

Mr. Hoover conspicuously before the American public in a manner likely to make the latter much more eligible as a possible contender for the nomination in 1928. Indeed, the president

knows that Mr. Hoover is not concerned with the politics but is endeavoring to render a maximum of service. Emergencies like that in the Mississippi valley immediately

charged the mind of a man like Mr.

Hoover who has a fascination for organization and relief work in moments of stress. His experience in organizing

work in Belgium and later in Russia as well as his handling of the problem of the food administration

here during the war, caused the president to give Mr. Hoover preference over the secretary of war, who normally would handle matters of this kind.

PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE

Mr. Coolidge did not send Mr. Hoover, however, to the flood area, merely

as the secretary of commerce but as his personal representative. During the Dayton flood, President Wilson,

in 1913, sent Lindley M. Garrison, secretary of war, to the Mississippi

district of cabinet officer as a representative of the federal government in a crisis of this kind.

The administration here hopes the incident will have the effect of erasing any charge of sectionalism which may have been directed toward the president before. Usually a Republican administration feels less inclined to worry about a section of the country

whose political rewards are so regularly handed to the opposite party. Mr.

Coolidge feels that in the recent collision crisis as well as in the Mississippi flood situation, the president

acted promptly and without regard to sectionalism and his friends therefore are inclined to point to the two episodes as proof of the national point of view of the chief executive.

Teasdale And Opponents In Verbal Fire Over Beer

HOLD SIMPLE RITES
TODAY FOR BEVERIDGE

Indianapolis—(AP)—With simple services, Albert J. Beveridge of Indianapolis, will be laid to rest in Crown

Hill cemetery Friday. The former

United States senator died early Wednesday morning from a heart attack

after a brief illness.

Federal, county and city courts

were closed in Indianapolis out of respect for the man who had been prominent for many years in the country's political and literary life.

SUPERIOR CITIZENS TO HONOR JAILED STRIKE CHIEFTAIN

"Black Ralph" Will Entertain
Auto Cavalcade on County
Work Farm

Superior—(AP)—Supporters of the Superior school strike, engaged for the past month in a fight with Miss

Lulu J. Dickinson, made plans Friday

to turn their attention Sunday towards the county work farm, where Ralph E.

Greenfield, Superior photographer and one of the strike leaders, is serving a ten day sentence for speeding.

As a mark of esteem, local citizens,

aligned with the striking students of Superior Central high school, are planning to form a Cavalcade of automobiles and visit Greenfield at the work

farm where he is "doing time" in preference to paying a fine. He is considered well to do.

Greenfield has been one of the most prominent figures in the walkout,

which continues with no prospect of being settled.

In Superior, Greenfield is credited with being involved in every civic fracas in the years he has been in business here. He is known as "Black

Ralph," and Mayor "Fred Baxter" is credited with giving him the nickname

in a playful controversy in which the two indulged. It was the mayor's manner of reciprocating when Greenfield called him "Red" Baxter.

WRITES "EDITORIALS"

During the present strike he has displayed pictures of the strikers, cartoonists and his own handwork lambast-

ing the school board and Superintendent

Paul Spencer and eulogized the citizens committee of 21 supporting the striking students. A daily "editorial"

on the situation is written by

Greenfield and posted in the window.

Prior to the school strike, Greenfield engaged in a lusty fight during the barber's price war. Popular barbers raised the price of haircuts from 50 to 75 cents. There was a protest

among the clientele and Greenfield came to bat. He conceived a plan by which barbershop patrons might receive at his shop free of charge a coupon good for 25 cents. This coupon was given to the barber together with the additional 50 cents for the hair-

cut. The barber received his additional 25 cents upon presenting the coupon to

Greenfield. Greenfield paid and charged to publicly.

Everyone was happy until the barbers' union declared the practice

"unethical" and threatened Superior barbers with expulsion. With his scheme doomed Greenfield promulgated a new one. He informed local barbers that unless they stuck to the 50 cent price he would equip a barbershop on wheels and dole out shaves

and haircuts right on Main-st. Greenfield won and the price of haircuts

went back to 50 cents.

LITTLE RESPONSE TO RED CROSS PLEA

Only 90 Contributions Have Been Made to Flood Relief Fund

Only 90 responses had been made

Friday morning to the call for help

for the flood sufferers in the Mississippi river valley. Appleton's quota is $1,000 of the $5,000,000 asked by President Coolidge. Herbert Hoover,

secretary of commerce, said he believes there will be twice as much as

that needed before the sufferers are relieved.

Fond du Lac gave $1,200 in three days. Appleton has given little toward its quota. Dr. M. H. Small,

chairman of the Outagamie chapter, announced. All checks are to be made payable to P. M. Conkey, treasurer of the Outagamie chapter of the American Red Cross association.

The need for the money is immediate, and people have been urged

through cards and letters to give toward the fund for the sufferers. Responses have been too few, the chairman said.

Madison—(AP)—If beer with 2.75 per cent alcoholic content is not intoxicating "why do they want to bother to amend the law to allow that kind of

beer?" asked Senator Howard Teasdale. Sparta, after proponents of Assemblyman's Duncan's "bill of rights

for the home brewer" had extolled the measure in the assembly state affairs committee hearing Thursday.

Assemblyman Duncan said his bill

removes penalties under the Severe-

son act for manufacture and sale of beverages containing up to 2.75 per cent of alcohol.

Ralph W. Jackman, Madison counsel for the Wisconsin Brewer's association, gave the opinion of several eminent toxicologists "to the effect that beer with that percentage of alcohol was non-intoxicating.

He declared that "there isn't any attempt on the part of prohibition department to stop home brewing; every one knows that hundreds of people are making beer in their homes."

Senator Teasdale said, "that is the kind of beer that is being brewed,"

endorsed the bill as did Assembly-

man Woller, member of the committee,

and Robert Tesh, member of the Milwaukee-co board.

Senator Teasdale took the stand.

His question directed at Attorney

Jackman, brought a brief triangular informal argument between the latter and Woller and the speaker. The committee chairman rapped for order,

and Senator Teasdale continued his argument after Mr. Jackman had inserted: "You know that's not so, Senator," concerning one of the senator's points against the bill.

"Surely," drunkenness has increased,"

Senator Teasdale said, "that is the

kind of beer that is being brewed,"

endorsed the bill as did Assembly-

man Woller, member of the committee,

and Robert Tesh, member of the Milwaukee-co board.

PREDICTS PIERCE PARK WILL BE ONE OF BEST IN STATE

Natural Beauty Spots Are Numerous, Says Landscape
Engineer

Within two or three years Pierce park will be one of the finest cultivated parks in Wisconsin among cities of the same class as Appleton, according to A. T. Rosenbaugh, engineer for the Chicago Landscape company in charge of improvement in the park. "This park is one of the finest natural beauty spots I have ever seen," Mr. Rosenbaugh said.

Laborers started work several weeks ago but progress has been delayed by adverse weather conditions. A week of good weather will put the same in such condition that work can advance rapidly and everything will be completed within five or six weeks.

Practically all the rough work, including grading, laying sewers and water mains, planting shrubbery, and constructing the rest rooms has been completed.

Workmen at present are engaged in trimming the shrubbery that was planted last fall and in working the ground about the shrubbery. As soon as the land has dried sufficiently dead limbs and leaves will be collected and burned and every foot of ground in the park will be seeded.

The driveways through the park have been graded but are unfinished. A six inch bottom of crushed rock will form the base for the finished surface and two inches of rolled gravel will complete the driveways. The footpaths are of cinders and rustic stairways leading into ravines in the park are formed by logs set in the hill sides.

Two rest rooms have been completed and three tennis courts and a baseball diamond plots have been laid out and will be ready for use soon.

It will be necessary to fill in the bottom of the natural ravine with clay before the small fountains that were planned can be located. The clay will prevent water from sinking into the ground. One lagoon will be several feet higher than the other and the water will flow over a small fall from one lagoon to the other. Footpaths lead to the ravine from all sides of the park. Shrubbery has been planted about the sides of the ravine to enhance its natural beauty.

Material for the band pavilion has been delivered at the park and the site has been laid out. The pavilion will cost $22,800 and will be paid for from the $50,000 park bond issue.

It probably will be two or three years before the beauty of the park is fully realized because it will take that length of time for the rough points to be worn off," Mr. Rosenbaugh said.

The improvement will be completed by July 1.

ACCEPT RESERVATIONS

The 815 Monday evening tennis class sponsored by the Appleton Women's club is still open for reservations. Miss Agnes Vanneman, director of the class, has announced. Beginners tennis will be taught in the class.

WELL DRILLED CAST OF GOOD ACTORS IN BIG PYTHIAN DRAMA

"Damon and Pythias" Pleases
Big Audience in College
Chapel

With a cast that is almost professional, assisted by a drill team dressed in the helmet, shield and sword of Roman days, Knights of Pythias presented the story of the reign of the tyrant king, Dionysius and of the friendship of Damon and Pythias upon which the order is founded, before nearly a full house Thursday night in Lawrence Memorial chapel. The play will be presented again Friday night.

J. F. Bannister, producer of the play and a former professional actor, played the part of Damon, who was sentenced by the tyrant Dionysius, played by the Rev. J. A. Holmes to die after he had refused to recognize the newly acclaimed monarch. Dr. Holmes, as the tyrant, carried his part perfectly and Mr. Bannister played one of the most highly dramatic roles in the cast.

Pythias, the bosom friend of Damon, who offers to be cast into the dungeon so that his friend may once more see his wife and son, is played by Harry C. Oaks. As Pythias, Mr. Oaks was uncomparable. Mrs. J. F. Bannister as Calanthe, played another dramatic role in the production and several times had the audience close to tears with her heartrending entreaties and cries.

Little Beatrice Bosser as Damon's child and Mrs. John Engel, Jr., as Hermion, his wife, made their impersonations splendidly. Mrs. W. H. Dean played the part of Arria, Calanthe's mother. Lucilius, a slave of Damon, played by J. M. Van Rooy, played his part very well. Ambrose Willson, H. F. Heckert and Elmer Root were supporters of the king. The Rev. Henry S. Gately told the story of Damon and Pythias friendship and explained the plot of the play. The Pythian drill team appeared several times now during the production and put on complicated drills. H. Kreick was captain of the guards.

Senators who appeared in session several times and who were present when Damon was freed by the king were George Schmidt, John Neller, W. Bonini, W. Eschner, L. Braun, S. Gmeiner, H. Schell, Joseph Kox, A. Wettengel, H. L. Bowly, George Dame, W. O. Schaller, Edward Shannon, W. O. Thiede, William Plotow, E. Cahill, R. Scherke, C. Behnke.

How To Play Bridge

By Milton C. Work

The pointer for today is: John F. Dille Co. IT OFFERED AN ADVISORY TO DOUBLE AN ADVERSE SUIE BID WITH ONE STOPPER IN THAT SUIT: WITH TWO STOPPERS AND REQUISITE SIDE STRENGTH NO TRUMP SHOULD BE BID.

John F. Dille Co. Yesterday's hand was held by West who had to decide what to do after a declaration by South.

My answer slip reads: No. 17. South pass; West should bid one No Trump.

No. 18. South one Spade; West should double.

No. 19. South one Heart; West should bid one No Trump.

No. 20. South one Diamond; West should bid one No Trump.

My reasons in support of these declarations are:

No. 17. With four suits stopped and a hand containing two Aces and two Kings, plus additional strength, the No Trump is so unquestionably the declaration that it does not need explanatory comment.

No. 18. The adverse suit being stopped but once, and there being admirable support for a Heart takeout, if East have four Hearts, the double is distinctly a better declaration than No Trump.

No. 19. A very close choice between No Trump and a double. The argument in favor of the double is that if East have four Spades, it will produce a Spade bid and that might work more advantageously than a No Trump.

No. 20. On the other hand, after a Spade by East (the one situation in which the double might work better than No Trump), South would lead. The West hand is of the type which desires as many leads as possible up to it, and it has the Hearts stopped twice. A No Trump is reasonably safe and more apt to make nine tricks than the possible Spade answer from the partner would be to make ten.

No. 21. Another close choice between No Trump and a double; probably closer than No. 19 because in this case doubling would give East a choice between two four-card Majors. In addition to this, South's Diamond bid, without the Ace and Queen of his suit, shows a King-Jack suit with at least two side tricks; and against such strength it is important for East and West to reach the best declaration. The advantage of having the original lead come up to the West hand rather than through it, however, seems to make the No Trump slightly more advantageous.

TROOP PROBLEMS OF SCOUTS STUDIED BY LEADERS OF COUNCIL

Uniform Methods of Checking Troop Attendance Discussed by Masters

Consideration of troop problems as to attendance, advancement records, activities, drill and inspection received the attention of Scoutmasters of the Valley Council at the regular monthly roundtable meeting Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. Those present were Scout Commissioner Walter Zwicker, leader of the roundtables; Capt. J. K. Campbell, United States Army; P. O. Kelcher, Valley executive and Scoutmaster Olin G. Dryer, Kaukauna; the Rev. Loren Knutzen and M. McBain, Seymour; the Rev. A. G. Fowkes, John McAndrew, Fred Holzknecht, John Lloyd, Wesley Sackner and Henry Heiss of Menasha; Harold Brown, P. E. Millington, Donald McFarlan, Walter Fountain and Thomas Yates of Appleton. Mr. Millington and Mrs. A. J. DuBois, Jr., who was unable to be present, were in charge of the program. Mr. Kelcher took Mr. DuBois' place.

A uniform method of checking troop attendance, advancement records and activities for individual Scouts was discussed and a definite formation to be used at all troop ceremonies and inspections was decided on by the Scoutmasters. Methods of instruction and the importance of having Scouts well grounded in fundamental requirements also were discussed. Capt. Campbell gave a short instruction and demonstration of the basic elements of drill and Mr. Millington demonstrated a method of holding a troop council around the campfire. This was followed by a conference on troop problems around the council fire. Several of the Scoutmasters brought up the subject of supplementing oral examinations and Scout requirements with a thorough written examination and advantages of both methods were discussed. Commissioner Zwicker presented the subject of standards for troop inspection and rating and offered for study as an example, the troop inspection report of the Minneapolis Scout council. The Scoutmasters were unanimous in the opinion that a definite method of troop inspection at regular intervals would be a decided advantage to all troops. The details were left to Commissioner Zwicker. Frank Younger of the council executive board and Mr. Zwicker stressed the importance of having the troops turn out on all public occasions. Mr. Zwicker spoke especially on a representative showing of Scouts on memorial day. This has been small in the past due to family excursions, picnics and other pleasure trips on that day. It should be for Scouts a Memorial day primarily, he said.

SCRATCHED ITCHING SKIN UNTIL IT BLEED

Relieved at once by a simple treatment

Evans City, Pa., April 2:—"Some time ago I had a bad case of eczema and skin itching. At times I scratched my skin until the blood ran. Then our family doctor advised me to use Resinol Soap and Ointment. I obtained relief at once and before long new, smooth skin had taken the place of the old sores. If Resinol should cost me twice as much I would never be without it as I do not think there is a soap or ointment on the market their equal, and it seems to me I have tried almost all of them. Resinol Soap is most refreshing and pleasant to use, and Resinol Ointment has a quick healing power. I have recommended these products to many people and expect to continue to do so." (Signed) E. J. Ziesler.

GIRL WORKERS ARE OFFERED SCHOOLING

Six Weeks Courses Will Be Offered Next Summer at State University

Madison —(AP)—Girl workers in industry will find themselves in an environment for removed from the roar of the mechanical world when the fourth annual summer session opens at the University of Wisconsin.

Planned especially for girl workers, a special course in three subjects, which will last for six weeks, is expected to attract the largest group so far enrolled.

The proverbial three "R's" will be replaced by three "E's" including economics, education and English. The education course will be devoted principally to the physical development of the girls.

Personal conferences supplement the regular classes, Miss Susan Davis, assistant dean of women, conducting the interviews. The course in economics will be under the direction of Prof. John Trosell and Miss Lella Bascom will instruct the English classes.

Requirements for admission to the special courses state that the girl must have an eighth grade education and be over 20 years of age. Girls between 18 and 20 are eligible if they have been in industry for two years. The school is not open to stenographers, saleswomen, electrical workers or teachers because it was originally planned for the industrial workers.

The school for the girls started in 1924 when eight Madison working girls, who had had no more than a grammar school education were admitted to the regular university summer work. By the next summer, through the cooperation of an advisory committee, forty-one girls were enrolled, representing a wide range of factory occupations for women.

Since then it has constantly grown until the attendance this summer is expected to pass the one hundred mark. The course is planned to give the

You can't look at a tire and tell how far it will run

YOU CAN'T SEE a tire carcass because it is covered by the tread. Yet the way this carcass is built tells how far the tire will run.

Dunlop has had 39 years to learn all the hidden points where tires wear. Dunlop carcasses are built from the best long fibre cotton, spun in Dunlop's own mills into the famous Dunlop cable-twist cord.

These cords are elastic, so they give and take as your tire runs; strong, so they resist constant load and pounding. They build the best possible foundation for the Dunlop tread—the toughest rubber development known.

Thus Dunlop's extra years of experience build added value into every vital tire part. That is why, not one Dunlop—but every Dunlop—gives you more service than you can reasonably expect.

EXPECT ARRESTS OF MEDDLERS OF STATE DOCUMENTS

No Clarifying Declaration Has Been Issued by State Department

BY RODNEY BUTCHER
Washington—One of these days the telegraph wires may tell us of the arrest of the meddlers who are said to have fished and altered certain important documents of state with a view to fomenting serious trouble between the "United States and Mexico."

The most unfortunate phase of the mystery is that although there have been all kinds of indications to convince one that certain papers passing from the State Department to the African embassy in Mexico City fell into the hands of President Calles,
there have been nothing but unconfirmed rumors, dark and deep, to show that the papers had been tampered with to the point of alteration or forgery.

A definite declaration from the State Department might clarify this situation, but it hasn't been forthcoming.

It may or may not be significant that there has been no condemnation of the Mexican government because it bought secret American papers from some one supposed to have pilfered them. Although this sort of espionage presumably is practiced throughout the world, its discovery during a period of strained international relations might have been expected to call forth a shout of holy horror at such immoral practices.

On the contrary, it is generally understood that relations between the two nations are sweet and peaceful compared with what they were a couple of months ago, and it is even added that the discovery of the forgeries or whatever they were has brought a new understanding and a certain sympathy where little but discord had previously existed.

Reports of what happened are so vague and conflicting, however, that the whole atmosphere is foggy. This same foginess enables numerous persons here to suggest that if the documents in question really did prove an unfriendly attitude toward Mexico
of an unseemly interest in revolutionary activities, Mexico might have been able to play them as trump cards.

Meanwhile the Sphinx of Sixteenth street, Mexican Ambassador Teller, is more silent than ever. All he admits is that he has read about the "forgeries" in the newspapers. But he grins like a Cheshire cat is supposed to grin.

Your correspondent saw Teller
shortly before he left for Mexico City on a trip now supposed to have been connected with the pilfered documents.
Teller was agitated. He was worried.
He was working late into the evening in his office, sending and receiving cablegrams. From what he said there was not the slightest question that he feared the smallest development might tip over the apple-cart of international relations.

Back from Mexico City Teller was again his suave, urbane and humorous self. At times he was almost humorous. If he wasn't sitting on top

PULPWOOD SUPPLY OF MOST MILLS IS HERE

Practically all pulpwood for local paper mills has been shipped in and only small quantities still are being received. Up until the heavy rains in the northern part of the east central states some weeks ago the wood was being shipped into Appleton at the rate of between 50 and 60 carloads per day. As soon as the rains arrived, however, activities in the woods ceased
and shipping also was abandoned.

Read this tribute from a grateful
user:

"I have been using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN now for about a year and a half. I was so badly constipated that I didn't know what to do. One day I read about Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Went to the store and bought me a package. It did me good and I am using it regularly. I had tried all kinds of medicine but they failed. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN surely saved me."

Very thankful,

Permanent streets are a good investment—not an expense

Don't Let Your Community Make the Same Mistake

Within recent years many communities have made the mistake of paving their highways at what they considered a "bargain price." The taxpayers thought they would save thousands of dollars.

In many instances the maintenance has not only wiped out the hoped for saving, but has exceeded original cost. And in many cases also it has been necessary to build entirely new streets—of permanent construction.

There are communities, however, which
know the cheapest is not always the best.
Many of these also built streets several years ago. And they built for permanence with concrete.

Those concrete streets, built in accordance with approved standards of highway construction, are in as good condition
today as when they were built.

Which of these communities will yours be?

AN ANTI-U. S. COMBINE

Louis Loucheur, French industrialist and former finance minister of France, in a speech before the Berlin Chamber of Commerce has demanded that all the nations of Europe join hands in the economic field to avoid being swamped by the super-production of the United States. He said that the "time has come to summon all the peoples of our continent to common action, but not to battle against another continent. Europe must organize, not for war against America, but to cooperate, shoulder to shoulder, with the New World in better exploitation of the world's goods."

"A rose by any other name would be as sweet" and an anti-U. S. combine under the guise of a European cooperative organization is still an anti-U. S. combine. Yet, call it what they will and be it as it is, we cannot but admire Loucheur's stand and to wish him good fortune in his effort to arouse Europe to the danger of America in an economic sense. If positions were reversed America would combine against Europe with right good will and feel perfectly justified in so doing.

A European "zollverein" and the international organization of cartels on the model of the steel and iron cartel formed last autumn between Germany and France are the first two steps, in M. Loucheur's opinion, on the road toward a European economic alliance and effective beginnings these would be.

There are four outstanding reasons for Europe's present economic distress: First, the decline in the purchasing power of gold, which meant a decrease in consumption; second, the decline in the production of Europe as compared with the pre-war period; third, the splitting up of Europe into small states with concomitant tariff barriers; fourth, the policy of commercial exclusiveness in the United States, which extensively bars its markets to Europe.

In the struggle for self-preservation the industries of Europe have no choice but to organize against America and out of the struggle a new era, industrially, may arise.

BRITAIN ON HER OWN

The end of April sees the British pound sterling, long since back to its pre-war level, once more on its own as the moral aid of America's $300,000,000 credit extended to England two years ago with the restoration of the gold standard by that country, is removed by the cessation of that credit. This help by America was essential when Great Britain returned to gold in 1925 and it was an open question whether the pound could be maintained on that basis. And $200,000,000 of the total credit was extended officially by the United States through the Federal Reserve system, the effect of the arrangement being to set up in this country what amounted to a huge gold reserve for Great Britain.

England, fortunately, has never had to make use of this American credit. As a second line of financial defense it was not called upon for service because the first line, England's own resources and sound financial policies, had not been penetrated. Sterling exchange, after two years of the gold standard, is well above the gold shipment point. And this despite a long and trying coal strike, despite a falling revenue in some quarters and despite political difficulties at home and abroad.

When the credits were obtained the chancellor of the exchequer declared: "These great credits across the Atlantic have been obtained and built up as a solemn warning to speculators of every kind and of every hue and in every country of the resistance they will encounter and the reserves with which they will be confronted if they attempt to disturb the gold parity which Great Britain has now established." How correct he was time has shown as one of the most creditable chapters in England's financial history comes to a close. Furthermore, this record could never have been achieved without war debt settlement.

SHIPS, AND YET MORE SHIPS!

Those who have followed the declining fortunes of the American merchant marine with regret, will rejoice that the Fleet Corporation has at its head General A. C. Dalton, who appears to have caught the spirit of the nation in wanting a really creditable merchant ship force capable of carrying our commerce efficiently. To quote a recent speech of General Dalton given before the Daughters of the American Revolution, America must answer the challenge to hold its high place in world trade by building an adequate merchant marine. He pointed out, for instance, that "without an efficient merchant marine no nation can maintain an efficient navy."

The United States is lamentably lacking in passenger and cargo vessels. "It is essential," he said, "that America seriously consider at this time the building of a new American merchant marine of vessels unequalled in type and speed on the high seas, so that our merchant fleet can hold its place by sheer merit in the face of foreign competition on every essential trade route and prove its value as a national asset through the character of the service it can render to our people."

General Dalton is right in all particulars. The past, with its mountainous mistakes, is done. It cannot be relived, and although the mistakes were serious, yet if they have given us experience that is worth while, then they have been valuable. The question still is, how to create a merchant marine that will be self-supporting, or that can be maintained by any sort of subsidy the people will approve. If General Dalton can point and lead the way, he will make a name for himself in American history.

THE LESSON OF JIMMY THOMAS

Forty-three years ago a little Welsh boy of nine started to work in the railway shops of a big British railway company. And the other day the wedding of the daughter of that Welshman was attended by the Prime Minister, a former Prime Minister and a score of great statesmen, peers and peeresses.

Things move slowly in old Britain, but they do move. A career that would have been incredible forty years ago is a fact today. The romance of Jimmy Thomas proves it.

The little Welsh boy advanced in rail-roading until he became one of the crack engineers in charge of one of the best trains on his line. Then he became a big man in his union and later went to Parliament, where he soon displayed his talents as a debater. He did big work for his country during the war.

When the Labor Party ran the government a couple of years ago, Thomas was made a member of the cabinet with the portfolio of Minister for the Colonies. And he was a good one. He was made a Privy Councillor. And again he made good. So it's no wonder all sorts of important people flocked to his daughter's marriage.

The lesson is plain. Sterling worth finds its way to the top even in a caste-bound country like England. You can't keep a good man down.

MUSIC BATH CHARM

A New York leader whose band plays with whistles, bells, mechanical pianos, rattling hammers and an airplane propeller gave a recital the other night. The only things that orchestra lacks are a few boilers and the cats from the back yard. . . . The resultant bedlam is known as "Ballet Mechanique." Some of the music auditoriums are planning to install elevated railways to keep up with the new trend. . . . A boiler-maker, having an off night, attended the recital and, after it was over, he felt as tired as if he had done a day's work. . . . The "ballet" expresses steel, according to the leader. Oh, well, most music is a steel anyhow. . . . The cop on the corner now is letting his hair grow.

WILBERT, YOUR WIG!

The beauty culture clan had decided that Americans should wear wigs. A great help for the eyes of the chorus folk who nightly brave the glare of flow A. . . . Wigs will be in colors, according to moods. Thus, at breakfast, blue; on the golf course, red—but what color is a man supposed to wear when paying the income tax? . . . Many a well-meaning, burrheaded man in the lapels topped shall find himself estranged because he should wear purple to match the lines in his nose. . . . This wig movement is probably a part of the propaganda to make Nick Longworth president of the United States.

CALCIUM AND SICK HEADACHE

There are about three pounds of calcium (lime) in the body of a man or woman, even one without much backbone. Prof. Henry C. Sherman, one of our best authorities on the chemistry of food and nutrition, believes that the ordinary mixed diet of Americans and Europeans, at least among dwellers in cities and towns, is probably more deficient in calcium than in any other chemical element.

It is one thing to take enough calcium (lime) in the form of food, water or medicine, and another thing to assimilate, utilize or metabolize the calcium. In the disease called rickets there is some defect in the metabolism or utilization of calcium, rather than a mere shortage of calcium in the diet. What we don't know about calcium metabolism will fill many books in the next few years, but we do know that an adequate supply of vitamins is essential for the normal utilization of calcium, and specifically vitamin D. So if you want to study this branch of physiology—and there can be no more desirable line of study for human beings to follow—you should equip yourself with the normal calcium metabolism of Food and Nutrition (The Macmillan Company, New York), but also Dr. E. V. McCollum's "Food, Nutrition and Health" (E. V. McCollum, Baltimore).

I do not urge victims of migraine (migraine, hemiparesis, periodic sick headache) to take cod liver oil, but cod liver oil is perhaps the richest known source of vitamin D and I believe I should prefer a course of cod liver oil to a course of castor oil if I were subject to migraine.

I do not advise victims of migraine to get sunburned, but I have a mere theory that if I were subject to this neurosis I should leave off all the clothing the law will allow and give my skin all the ultraviolet light it could stand. The ultraviolet influence contributes to the normal calcium metabolism.

Not with malice aforethought, but just a touch of that absent mindedness which we brainy men effect, I have forgotten who first suggested the calcium treatment for periodic sick headache, but it was some good physician. Calcium treatment has been employed with a fair degree of success in the treatment of hay fever, hyperostotic rhinitis, recurrent hives or giant hives (angioneurotic edema), bronchial or spasmodic asthma, and now in migraine. In the last few years I have had some extraordinary reports from readers who have tried this treatment for sick headache. Here is the latest (unfortunately I have not saved these letters):

"Time ago you told about taking calcium lactate for migraine sick headache. I have had migraine for years, an attack coming about six times a week. A month ago I purchased some five grain tablets of calcium lactate, and on the warning of an attack I would take two tablets (10 grains) and twice I took three tablets (15 grains). During the month I have taken usually about a dozen five grain tablets. Usually, however, they have prevented my headache. But 10 days ago a rash appeared over my body, tiny pimples which itched or burn intensely, but no water or fluid comes from them. Would the calcium lactate throw something out of my system in a rash like this? I have had no threat of headache since this rash appeared. It may be that the rash is from the calcium. It may be that the rash is from the medical effect of the medicine and is no indication that anything is being 'thrown out of the system.' Most people who take the calcium treatment take perhaps 10 grains of calcium lactate every day for a period of perhaps six or eight weeks, then reserve a supply to take only when the aura or warning signal of an impending attack occurs, when it is well to take a fairly large dose—15 to 20 grains at once, with plenty of water."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Not So Remarkable

We have no troubles or "symptoms"—perhaps we quote you some thanks for it—but we just want to quote from a letter we have received from a friend in the west.

"I guess I got rheumatism or pleurisy or something, pains all over my body and my left kidney felt like there was a red hot iron in it. I got some pills from Willemann, the butcher and they sure done me some good."

Answer—Back east your friend would have experienced in much the same way, only he would have dubbed the butcher "Doctor" or "Professor." Folks are the same everywhere, but east they are not so candid as they are west.

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

By Arnold Mulder

WHEN EMERSON CAME TO GRAND RAPIDS

In "The Heart of Emerson's Journals," compiled by Eliza F. Perry, I came across the following excerpt from a letter written home by the great transcendentalist in 1860: "At Kalamazoo a good visit, and made intimate acquaintance with a college wherein I found many personal friends, though unknown to me, and one Emerson was an established authority. Even a professor or two came along with me to Marshall to hear another lecture. My chief adventure was the necessity of riding in a buggy 48 miles to Grand Rapids; then, after lecture, 20 more on the return; and the next morning getting back to Kalamazoo in time for the train here at twelve. So I saw Michigan and its forests and Wolverines pretty thoroughly."

The other day I followed the route taken by Emerson from Kalamazoo to Grand Rapids and I did it quite comfortably in an hour and a half. The road builders were busy putting shoulders on the last two gaps of highway between the two cities; the subject of controversy it would have been very easy for the faculty members and students of that little college to assume that there could be no genuinely great man in the present, that the great men all had lived in the past. I am not so sure that in many a college today that attitude would not be taken toward a contemporary Emerson. These old fellows of 1860 were amazingly up-to-date and intellectually progressive, even though they lived so near the wilderness that they could hear the wolves howl at night.

Are we of today as hospitable to genuine culture as were those forefathers of ours whom Emerson visited in the forests of Michigan in 1860? There is no possible way of striking a balance. In some ways we are probably more hospitable to thought, but it is also likely that in some important senses we are less so.

But whatever a painstaking comparison of the people of that day were not unworthy even of an Emerson. That is worth remembering the pioneer conditions of this state.

planted in the almost unbounded forests of Michigan, almost as far distant from the culture of the world as is today a village in the heart of Africa. Yet in that little center of culture and learning Emerson found many "personal friends, though unknown to him." They lived far from the world of culture, confined as it was to a narrow strip of seaboard, but they were in close touch with the best thought of their time. They knew Emerson, the intellectual voice of America.

This is all the more remarkable when it is remembered that contemporary sages are often disregarded. Easy enough today for the learned men in any college to honor Emerson. In 1860 Emerson was still alive, the subject of controversy. It would have been very easy for the faculty members and students of that little college to assume that there could be no genuinely great man in the present, that the great men all had lived in the past. I am not so sure that in many a college today that attitude would not be taken toward a contemporary Emerson. Water Lily

A STAR THAT DWELLS UPON THE WATERS

BY ARTHUR N. PACK

President, American Nature Ass'n

The American Indians told many legends to account for the origin of our white water lily. A favorite being that it was a lonely and lonely maiden in the guise of a star, who came to dwell upon the waters in search of her earthly love.

The chaste beauty of this water lily has long made it a favorite with wild flower lovers. Like all its relatives it has been made the subject of numerous pretty legends, and is often confused with the American lotus, a water plant closely related to the sacred lotus of the Nile.

It is not the same flower, however, as the water lily belongs to the group known as the water nymphs rather than the true lotus clan.

The beauty and fragrance of the water lily has caused it to be much sought after for garden tanks and home culture, and of recent years botanists and flower growers have made such progress in producing hybrids that the flower may now be had in almost any color desired.

Yellow, rose, rose-carmine, scarlet,

pale blue, bright blue and purple are some of the tints which this lovely flower has been made to take. But at that, for most of us, the loveliest of all water lilies are those of purest white, with golden centers, that we gathered from mud-bottomed ponds in days of childhood.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York — Generally speaking, but one side of the Broadway picture is familiar to the average person in or out of Manhattan.

And this is the kaleidoscope of lights, theaters, night clubs, chorines, producers and such.

Caught in this maze are scores who turn rural at the slightest opportunity, using fortunes made on the big streets to build up a quiet home life in the country.

There is, for instance, one Broadway figure whose ups and downs have become almost mythical. With the first breath of spring he is off to his farm at Ramsey, N. J., and on Sunday morning you will find him milking the cows and feeding the chickens. He prides himself on an army of hens and once brought 40 dozen eggs back to the city in a basket to show the performers how well his hens were getting along. He gets more fun out of bringing eggs to market than signing a big contract.

Last winter he went up to his farm for a week-end and was snowed in. Unable to get out the following day, he got the thrill of his life being imprisoned and rendered completely helpless by the blizzard.

Over week-ends he entertains black bottom dancers and night club entertainers who are grateful for this brief escape from their late shift in a world of tobacco smoke, jazz bands, fat buyers from out of town and clinking glasses.

NTG this fellow is known to radio fans, and Grundy is the family monitor. For 14 years he has made and lost money on the "main racket," as Broadway is often dubbed. Before that he was a prize-fighter and a sporting editor. He has become celebrated for his eagle eye for newcomers.

Mary Miles Minter and Clara Bow were but two unknowns that he spotted.

His case is not at all unusual, most Broadway folk, as soon as they get sufficient money together, buy place in the country and run to them as an escape from the hectic demands of the bright light belt.

Jeanne Eagles invested considerable of her profits from "Rain" in a place on the Hudson. The Rooneys, of vaudeville fame, live in a big vaudeville colony on Long Island. Tom Meighan raises his family at Great Neck and Gloria Swanson, when in New York, spends week-ends at her country place at Croton-Hudson. Blanche Ring, Ethel Barrymore and a score of others have country places "down the Island."

As summer nears, the rush away from Broadway grows greater. Those who have been particularly prosperous keep places both in the country and at the seashore.

While the incomes of Broadwayites sound large on paper, most of the "big names" spend accordingly and many find themselves in embarrassing economic circumstances when the wind changes.

Keeping up city, country and seashore places, with a car at each, runs into terrific overhead, to say nothing of the town and country cars, the yachts and the entertainment. A salary of a thousand or more a week is necessary to keep up even a pretense at this life.

But for the investments of business managers many would have long since encountered the "rainy day." (Copyright, 1927, NEA Service, Inc.)

ONE CANNOT BE A PESSIMIST IF CORNERS OF HIS MOUTH TURN UP

EDITOR'S NOTE—Haskell Coffin, eminent artist, describes his ideal feminine mouth in this article.

BY HASKELL COFFIN
FOR NEA SERVICE

YOUTH, of course, is important in more ways than one. Mouths tell character, passion, fullness or thinness of lips give a clue to strength or weakness.

Nowadays lipsticks make many lips look alike. Unfortunately, too, for here are as many different mouths as there are individuals.

The perfect mouth is of medium size with the upper lip not too long. Lips should be moderately full and curve gently. The prettiest mouths are those with upturned corners. It is not possible to be a pessimist with upturned corners. So if you are inclined that way—laugh and conquer it. And the woman so gifted may be truly unhappy, but everyone will give her the benefit of the doubt and dub her the "sunny Mrs. S. with her smiling mouth."

TEETH AND LIPS

Of course the perfect mouth closes over even, white teeth. Teeth have a great deal to do with beauty. But the shape of the lips is all-important. Some mouths pout, some sneer, some coquette and coax. In many faces the mouth is the most distinctive characteristic. Recently a famous cartoonist drew Mary Pickford. The only line in the face fashioned the mouth. Instantly, anyone recognized her because of the individual charm of her mouth.

MOUTH CHARACTER

The thin mouth with turned down corners has a hard, dragging down expression. Too full lips, on the other hand, create the impression of voluptuousness. The full, red lips of the dancing girls Mae Murray plays on the screen, carry most of the appeal these characters have.

The lines of the mouth change with years and experience, just as the lines in one's hands do. A person developing patience or restraint will show it in the mouth. Often, therefore, it is more interesting to draw a mouth that shows character than one that has perfection of line but nothing else.

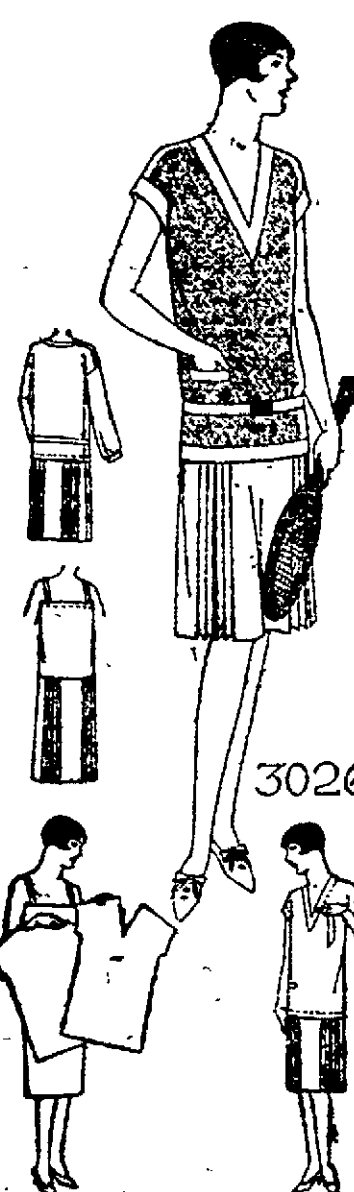

Here, as everywhere, expression is half of beauty.

EARLY BAIL!

Ears need little said about them. I have never liked ears. Fortunately in the past decade I have been able to neglect them because they never show. I have almost forgotten what ears look like on women and have an unpleasant reaction when one of the new bobs reveals them. The short bobs, which take almost all the hair off, are unpleasant to me. I am not against bobbed hair if attractive, for that is a personal choice for each woman.

And I wonder if I would care to see all women with long hair again. That is a question—custom is so strange.

Love Letters Of The Great

AS COMPILED BY DIANA RICE

DIDEROT—1713

Diderot, "the talker" charmed sweethearts and companions alike with his glib tongue and fascinating manner of speech. With open hand and open heart, this happy-go-lucky philosopher won the love of several women. Sophie Voland was one of them. He married a seamstress with whose mother he lodged, and of whom he finally wearied. It was the passion of his second mistress for fine clothes that drove Diderot to write. In order to provide money for this character, it is said that Diderot between good Friday and Easter Sunday wrote an article which attracted the attention of the leading literary lights of Paris. Generous and affectionate, this friend of Voltaire, whose philosophical essays called down the ire and suspicion of the French government, had a pity and zeal for humanity which made him widely loved. He, too, like other writers of that day won the distinction of being imprisoned for his seditious writings.

Diderot to Sophie Voland
I cannot leave this place without saying a few words to you. So, my pet, you expect a good deal from me. Your happiness, your life, even depend, you say, upon my ever loving you!

"Never fear, my dear Sophie: that will endure, and you shall live, and be happy. I have never committed a crime yet, and am not going to begin. I am wholly yours—you are everything to me; we will sustain each other in all the ills of life it may please fate to inflict upon us; you will soothe my troubles; I will comfort you in yours. SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

True to his promise to the press, District Attorney Banning called Mrs. Seymour Albright to the witness stand immediately after court was declared in session on Monday morning.

"Your name," Banning asked, in a gentle voice, of the tall, stately, middle-aged, richly dressed woman who occupied the witness chair as if it had been a throne.

"Alice Cluny Albright," the witness answered in a low, clear voice. If she was conscious that two or three staff artists of metropolitan newspapers were sketching her, she gave no sign. "We were related to the deceased Ralph Winston Cluny?" Banning asked gently.

"He was my father," Mrs. Albright's voice trembled slightly.

"Your mother is also dead?" Banning pursued in a deferential voice.

"My mother died three years ago."

"Mrs. Albright, may I ask if you approved of your father's engagement to the defendant, Cherry Lane Wiley?"

"I did not!" There was well-bred indignation in the witness's voice.

"Now, Mrs. Albright, I will ask you if you recall the date of Saturday, October 2, last?"

"I do."

"Mrs. Albright, will you relate the events of the evening of October 2, insofar as they concern this defendant, and to the extent of your personal knowledge?"

"My husband, Mr. Seymour Albright, and my daughter, Muriel, and I were attending the regular Saturday night dinner at the Marlboro Country club on that date." Mrs. Albright began hurriedly, as if she had rehearsed her story well. "About half past nine my—nephew," she hesitated over the word as if she hated to acknowledge the relationship, "Mr. Robert Hathaway, who is also a member of the Marlboro Country club, arrived with Miss Lane, Miss Cherry Lane," she amended, a flush staining the delicate pallor of her cheeks, "and introduced her to my husband, my daughter and myself."

"Just a minute, Mrs. Albright," Banning interrupted her gently. "Did you know at this time that your father was engaged to be married to Miss Cherry?"

"I did. My cousin, Miss Amelia Peabody, had heard the news and had told me, although my father had not yet taken me into his confidence."

"Go ahead, Mrs. Albright, in your own way."

"About half past ten or maybe it was not quite so late, I went into the library of the clubhouse to rest between dances. I was alone there, seated in one of the large, overstuffed easy chairs, and not easily visible from every part of the room, which is quite large. A few minutes after I had seated myself, my nephew and Miss Lane entered the room. I did not disclose my presence, since I did not deem it necessary, as the room is a public one. But when I heard the sound of a kiss, I rose from the chair, intending to leave the room to the lovers. It was then that I heard Miss Lane say, 'I'll give you your answer now, Bob. It is yes.'"

"Go right on, Mrs. Albright," Banning urged happily.

"I advanced toward the couple—they were in each other's arms—and Miss Lane broke away from my nephew's embrace, as if confused, and I put my arms about her, congratulating her—"

"Just what were your words, Mrs. Albright?"

"I believe I said, 'I'm so glad! I knew there must have been some mistake. So it's you after all, Bob! Congratulations!'"

"That is all, Mrs. Albright," Banning dismissed her hastily but courteously. "Your witness!" and he waved an ironic hand toward Churchill.

TOMORROW: Ralph Cluny speaks from the grave to help Cherry.

Women's Oldest

hygienic problem now solved a new and different way—true protection. Dispose of it as easily as tissue

By ELLEN J. HUCKLAND
Registered Nurse

THE old-time "sanitary pad" is fast becoming a rarity. Millions are discarding it as a needless hazard.

"KOTEX," a new and remarkable way, is now used by 8 in 10 better class women.

Discards as easily as tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment. It's five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads!

You dine, dance, motor for hours in sheerest frocks without a second's doubt or fear.

It deodorizes, too. And thus stops all danger of offending.

You ask for it at any drug or department store, without hesitation, simply by saying "KOTEX."

Do as millions are doing. End old, insecure ways. Enjoy life every day. Be sure you get the genuine. Only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex.

KOTEX
No laundry—discard like tissue

MULES HAUL AUTO THROUGH FLOODED REGION IN SOUTH

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Being towed by mules through water above, the floor of their car, and again plowing with the fore wheels mounted on trucks, with the passengers conveyed through on high vehicles were the harrowing experiences of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Parfitt, who left Perdo Bench, Ala., Friday, April 15, for their summer home at Eagle River. Reaching Hopkinsville, Ky., the motorists were confronted by a stretch of flooded area extending over a length of more than twelve miles, and a depth which rose above the fence tops. In many places farmers planked roads through their farm lands at some little expense to themselves and charged motorists 50 cents for the privilege of driving through their grounds. All lowlands in the southern part of their journey are feeling the effects of the excessive rains and the high water conditions throughout the southern states. Many large tracts which are not in the river sections are like bodies of running water. Mr. and Mrs. Parfitt spent a few days in this city while enroute to Eagle River as guests of the latter's sister, Mrs. James Hoba.

Chinese Civil Justice Interspersed With Tea

Chinese civil justice is often interspersed with tea and talk.

This is the statement of the Rev. Stephen C. Peabody, Congregational missionary in Peking, China, in a communication received by his father, the Rev. H. E. Peabody.

Citing an example of an automobile accident, when a Chinese farmer was struck by a car the missionary was drinking, the Rev. Mr. Peabody tells of the leisurely, informal manner in which the case was settled, to the satisfaction of the victim, police and driver.

"Talking it over" was apparently the general custom, and the conversation touched on a wide range of subjects far removed from the accident case.

A group of foreigners planned to go by automobile from Peking to Lan Tien Chiang, a village to the west of Peking about five or six miles," he said. As we were driving along the crowded part of Pao Fang Hutung, I saw a man in front of us walking in the same direction that we were travelling. I honked my horn and about turning around he veered off to the side giving us just room to pass.

Just as we came up to him for some reason he swung directly in front of the car—he was knocked down—and both wheels on the right side of the car ran over his leg, just below the thigh. There were five of us in the car.

"We hurried out of the car at once—a crowd gathered—and I expected that most anything might happen. The poor man was evidently in intense pain. Though not unconscious, he was groaning constantly. It at once expressed by deep concern, in the limited Chinese that I had, I felt that we must at once get him to a hospital for there was no telling how seriously he was hurt. And then a most amazing thing happened: The crowd with one accord began to make excuses to me for the man; one man said: "It wasn't your fault, he is a countryman and doesn't understand city ways." Another said: "He is deaf and didn't hear the horn—and even if he had he would not have known what it meant." This to a great burly foreigner—a stranger—driving a car through narrow streets in ways which perforce were a constant convenience and often danger to themselves and especially to their children.

"At length some one remarked that since in his fall the man had bruised his head and drawn blood it was necessary to call a policeman. I at once agreed, and still another man volunteered to dash off to find one. In less than a minute they returned. I told the policeman as well as I could what had happened, saying that I was anxious to do everything I could for the man as soon as possible. He asked me what I thought ought to be done. I suggested a hospital. He put it up to the crowd. They concurred. For the sake of speed I suggested taking the man into our car and rushing immediately to the Peking Medical College, where X-rays, etc., could be taken to discover how serious the matter was. But at this moment, a young lad spoke up whom I had not seen before—he was son of the man who very naturally had some aversion to having his father put in the same car that had hit him. Also he did not like the sound of X-rays. So we talked it over in the most friendly atmosphere, and since the son was firm, someone suggested another hospital. Everyone agreed and the man was placed in a rickshaw ready to leave.

"Then I told the policeman of our meeting at Lan Tien Chiang. I asked him if it would be possible for me to leave my card with him and while the man was being treated at the hospital to go out to our meeting—and then on our return in the late afternoon call at his headquarters and make more definite arrangements. He was evidently surprised at my request but smiled and turned to the crowd—who entered into the spirit of it—explained to him the necessity of our being at the meeting just as if they were the Board of Directors themselves. And so it was arranged. I resumed my place at the wheel—the crowd with tongue in cheek made themselves scarce as I got under way again. I called out a hurried but heartfelt "thank you" to them for their services, and a "see you later" to the man and the policeman as they started for the hospital—and so off we went.

"On our return I went to the local police office with a friend who was to act as my interpreter. Tea was served. I retold my story. We discussed the political situation, the common difficulty in making both ends meet, and finally after learning that the man was getting along well, we were referred to the chief magistrate. On arrival at his yamen, we were ushered into the reception room—tea was again served—the matter was again talked over. I further said I hoped that things could be arranged without reference to extrajudicial courts—from what I had seen already of their methods of justice I was quite content to have it at-

"GETTIN' GERTIE'S GARTER"

Getting a lady's garter sounds rather risqué, but it isn't always that, at least not in "Gettin' Gertie's Garter," which opened auspiciously at Fischer's Appleton Theatre last night, with Marie Prevost in the stellar role.

But for laughs—rank, honest laughs—it would be hard to find a more effective medium than this rattling farce-comedy of woman's wiles and man's guile. It starts with a giggle and ends with a guffaw, and mischievous Marie and her mischief-making garter run rampant throughout the picture. The direction of E. Mason Hopper was excellent.

It is all about a young chap (Charles Ray) who buys what he believes to be a bracelet for his fiancée (Marie Prevost) but which proves to be a garter. On the dainty piece of milady's accoutrement is a photograph of the young man, and also a photograph of his intended. Then comes the break between the engaged couple, and the bracelet that turned out to be a garter is metamorphosed into a Nemesis. For the girl becomes engaged to another man, who is extremely jealous, and her ex-fiance also becomes affianced to a girl of inquiring disposition. This complicates matters, and things get "thick" when Gertie tries to return the garter to her ex-sweetie. Jealous flance and ex-flance's "nosey"—new "sweetie"—always turn up at the psychological moment when Gertie is trying to return the nifty garter, and the result is, to say the least, a suspicious and embarrassing series of events.

Marie Prevost has the time of her life in this great farce. The role fits her like the proverbial cat-skin. In fact, it is another "Up in Mabel's Room," in which she scored so heavily recently. Charles Ray as the flance and ex-flance, proves a splendid foil to Miss Prevost. The supporting company is quite satisfactory.

The examinations at the hospital fortunately revealed no serious injury. It being in winter the man was wearing heavily padded clothes, which undoubtedly relieved the shock. He was given a bed in the hospital, to get rested from the shock and to have the bruises on his head properly dressed. When I went in to see him a day or two later he smiled, and proceeded to tell me in detail about himself; the bad crops, his decision to bring his son into Peking to find work, the fruitless search, and now their desire to get back to their village about twenty-five miles north of Peking.

"And then we settled the case for $6.00."

The gay, jazz-mad life as lead by some of the younger generation is told in vivid strokes in "Sin Cargo" at the New Bijou today and Saturday.

Most of the action of this highly dramatic picture takes place on a palatial yacht upon which a party of merry makers discard all conventions and proceed to have the time of their young lives. Knowing the reputation of the owner of the yacht, the young heroine manages to outwit him and prove to her brother who is anxious that she marry the knave, that he is untrustworthy. The advent of a sea-captain, young and handsome, further complicates matters for the scheming rascal.

The picture contains many exciting moments with drama liberally interspersed with comedy. There are some water scenes that are the best seen in some time, and in the mutiny scene the action made one believe that he was seeing a real fracas.

In the cast are such well-known screen players as Shirley Mason, who plays the feminine lead, Robert Frazer as the handsome young sea captain, Earl Metcalfe as the weakling brother who becomes heroic towards the end, Lawford Davidson as the rich roue, Gertrude Astor, Pat Harmon, William L. Walling, Billy Cinders, James Mack and K. Nambu.

WAR VETERANS TO PICK THEIR OWN QUEEN OF BEAUTY

Marquette.—(P)—World war veterans of Wisconsin are going to select their own beauty queen.

At the annual state convention which will be held here in August, approximately 5,000 members of the American Legion will view the competition between attractive feminine entries in a beauty contest.

Preliminary contests will be held by each post in the state, the winners of local competition entering the final judging here during the convention.

The contest is said to have the endorsement of State Commander D. J. Kenny and district commanders over the state, Robert Hitchon, Marinette, is chairman of the beauty contest, and plans are being made for the preliminary tests. Only one girl will represent each post, the winner of the final competition to be adjudged the queen. Contestants will be attired in bathing suits.

SCHUMAN-HEINK TO SING FOR STEVENS POINT POST

Madame Ernestine Schuman-Heink, "mother of the American legion," who recently sang here, has offered her services to the Stevens Point post of the legion because of her friendship with Ferdinand A. Hirzy of that city, first vice commander of the state legion and past commander of the Stevens Point post. Madame Schuman-Heink will sing a concert for the post gratis.

The great singer bounced Mr. Hirzy on her knee when he was a child in the same village in Austria. She has planned a vacation trip to Canada this summer and will go to Stevens Point for a few days as Mr. Hirzy's guest at that time. The concert probably will be held at that time.

NATION-WIDE ESSAY CONTEST PLANNED BY RAIL ASSOCIATION

Organization Is Concerned Over Increase of Accidents at Grade Crossings

Concerned over the increase that took place in 1926 over 1925 in the number of highway grade crossing accidents, and believing that more care should be exercised by all those crossing railroad tracks, the American Railway Association has announced plans for a nationwide essay contest among school and college students. An announcement of the contest in which three cash prizes of $250 each will be awarded the authors of essays containing an outstanding available suggestion for preventing accidents, has been received by the local chamber of commerce.

One prize of $250 will be awarded by the American Railway Association for the best essay by a grammar student, a similar prize for the best essay by a high school student and a like amount for the best essay by a college student.

Under the rules prescribed by the American Railway Association, the subject of the essay is to be "Crossings Cautiously" and each essay is to be limited to 250 words. The essays must be terse, logical, and constructive, and must stress the need for greater care in approaching and passing over railroad crossings.

The essays are to be sent to J. C. Caviston, secretary of the safety section of the American Railway Association, at 20 Vesey Street, New York City, by not later than June 1. Three persons of national reputation, to be selected later, will act as judges.

Under the plan, class teachers in both grammar and high schools will select the best essays for their classes and transmit them to their principal who will then select the best essays from that school and send it to the superintendent of schools for the county, or an equivalent officer. The county superintendent will then select the best essay written by a grammar student and the best one written by a high school student in his county and will transmit them to the American Railway Association. Colleges may follow the same procedure, except that each college or university, through its proper officer, may select one essay and transmit direct to the American Railway Association.

In 1926 there were 5,221 highway grade crossing accidents in which

OLD DREDGE IS SOLD TO GREEN BAY COMPANY

The United States government dredge Omro which has been in service on the Fox River for the past 40 years was sold to the highest bidder, the Adolph Green Construction company of Green Bay, early this month. It was delivered to that company last week. The boat had served its term of usefulness on the river and last fall a new steel dredge, Winnebago, was delivered to replace the Omro. The new dredge was built at Sturgeon Bay.

2,492 persons were killed and 6,591 were injured. In 1925 there were 2,478 accidents in which 2,206 persons were killed and 6,555 injured. Owing to the increase that is constantly taking place in the number of automobiles in use, the hazard from such accidents is annually becoming greater. Only through the cooperation of the public and the railroads can a reduction in such accidents be brought about, in view of the fact that the complete elimination of highway grade crossings is impossible, not only because of the time that would be involved, but also because of the prohibitive cost, which ultimately falls on the public.

PLUMBER'S COMMITTEE WILL MEET NEXT WEEK

The plumber's apprenticeship committee will meet at the Appleton Vocational school at 7:30 Wednesday evening to continue a discussion of a tentative program for apprenticeship training. J. P. Chandler, elected temporary chairman of the committee at the last meeting, has set the date for the gathering. Other members of the committee are Thomas Long, representing the Master Plumbers' association; Walter Van Ryzin and Harry Schaefer of the Journeymen Plumber's association.

FILES PETITION OF VOLUNTARY BANKRUPTCY

A petition of voluntary bankruptcy was filed Wednesday with C. E. Behnke, referee in bankruptcy, by Paul E. Christen, 314 E. Pacific street, a millwright. Mr. Christen listed his liabilities at $1,000 in secured claims and $1,029.97 in unsecured claims, and his assets at $3,500, all of which he claimed as exempt. The first meeting of creditors will be held on May 10 at Mr. Behnke's office in the Insurance bldg.

NASH

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

Nash 7-bearing crankshaft takes longer to build—costs more

It takes longer to build a 7-bearing motor than it does to build one with only 3 or 4 main bearings.

There are at least 3 more bearings to hone and polish. (Nash has considerably more bearing surface than other six-cylinder motors in the Nash price field with 4-bearing crankshafts.)

There are at least 3 more bearings to align. And there are at least 3 more bearings to check for proper clearances.

But the Nash 7-bearing crankshaft eliminates the "whip" which loosens bearings and piles up expensive shopwork on motors with fewer crankshaft bearings.

Obviously, it costs more in time and money to build the Nash 7-bearing crankshaft.

Why then does Nash build it, when other manufacturers still use engines with fewer bearings?

The answer is that Nash owners have come to expect Nash to be definitely better than any other car they could buy at the Nash price.

And 7 bearings alone produce superlative power-smoothness and power-quietness.

Before you select your new motor car, drive a Nash and see how smooth it is at high speeds, how powerful and effortless its pick-up at every speed.

CUB BATS POUND PIRATES FROM LEAD TO FOURTH PLACE

Giants Battle Into Top Position And Cardinals Quakers Tie For Second

Drastic Shakeup in A. L. Thursday Also Causes Changes in Five Places

New York—Giants bats again played the winning music for the National League parade Friday after a wild scramble for extra places in the line. With a flurry of extra base blows that subdued the Braves in a ding-dong melee by 4-3, the Gotham conquerors profited Thursday by an overwhelming defeat of the Pirates to clinch undisputed possession of first place. At the same time the Quakers and Cardinals moved up into second place, while there was a general shakeup in the American league which affected no less than five teams.

The Giants plucked only seven safe blows from the pitching of Bob Smith, but four of them scored for extra bases. One, a home run by Eddie Roush, and another for two bases by Eddie Farrell, figured in rallies which turned the tide in favor of the Gotham entry.

Pittsburgh's tumble from a seat on the peak was no light fall. The Pirates went down hard in a cloud of dust before a blast of 17 Chicago hits. A nine-run rampage in the second inning blew up the contest which bristled all the way with showers of clouting and ended finally in a lopsided count of 16-1.

The rebellious Phillies were scarcely more secure in their treatment of four Brooklyn pitchers, but it required a home run in the ninth by Russell Wrightstone to clinch the game. Wrightstone's round-trip blow arrived while the bases were jammed to capacity and contributed the high powered slam of a five-run rally.

The only skirmish in the league unmarked by a parade of pitchers' bats and shovels produced a 3-1 victory for the Cardinals under brilliant pitching by Flint Rehm.

Carl Mays opposing them on the mound, gave only five hits but four of them went for extra bases.

Second, third, fourth, sixth and seventh places in the American all here were in a general spring house cleaning. An eleven inning defeat of the Browns by the White Sox enabled the Athletics to swing into second position on the crest of another huge hitting wave.

The Senators, caught under the billow, were dropped from third to fourth, while Detroit pushed the Indians off the sixth place shelf. Six Washington hurlers ran to conquer under the Mackian storm of hits the Athletics winning easily by 15-7. It was the only pronounced slugger party of the day in the circuit, however, for pitching duels dominated the Cleveland-Detroit and St. Louis-Chicago battles, with the Sox clinching their game in the eleventh, 2-1, and the Tigers staging a five-run seventh inning spurt to beat off the Indians, 6-5.

MANY MINOR LEAGUE STARS AT KIMBERLY

Les Smith of Ottumwa Champs, Roehrick of Minnesota Loop, to Play

Kimberly—Opening at Green Bay Sunday, the K. C. Athletics of this valley's entry in the Fox River Valley Baseball League, will have one of the strongest lineups in the league. Village fans are looking forward to a pennant winner and one of the most successful baseball seasons on record. Numbering among the Kimberly players are some of the valley's most prominent ballmen. The lineup that will start against Green Bay will probably be: Vandervoort on the mound and Hartley catching behind the bat. George Roehrick of the Fairbault team of the Southern Minnesota League of last season will be in reserve as a pitcher. Schell will hold down first base position, while Marty Lamers will be on second, either Boots Butch Thoin on third sack. With this lineup the Kimberly pitchers have some of the best backing in this section. The outfielders will be picked from the following list of Pope of Waupaca, Les Smith of last year's championship Ottumwa team of the Mississippi Valley League, Haugen, Cooke and H. Thoin of last year's Kimberly squad.

The Kimberly team play their first three games as openers, opening at Green Bay, Kimberly and Appleton on successive Sundays beginning the first of May.

Meanwell-Little Coach School Starts June 13

Madison—For the third consecutive season, Dr. Walter E. Meanwell and George E. Little of the University of Wisconsin athletic department will conduct their intensive course of instruction for coaches of football and basketball. The school will be held here, starting on the morning of June 13 and concluding on June 25.

The personnel of the Badger short course has been bolstered this year by the addition of Glenn Thistlethwaite, whose lectures and grid demonstrations will be the feature of the 1927 school. With Thistlethwaite officiating in the football classes, Little will be free to direct and supervise the session, and confer with the students on all phases of athletic administration.

Assisting the three Wisconsin coaches in their work is one of the most able instructional staffs operating in the country today. They are

Here's one all good women five pin bowlers can shoot at during the next few months. It may not be a world record — although nothing can be found to the contrary—but it's worth talking about. Miss Aquin Carthy, of Winnipeg, Canada, recently rolled 907 points in a league game of the Canadian National five pin league. Her scores were 291, 342 and 274.

SIS, BROTHER SHINE AT PILOTING HORSES

It's unusual to have a brother and sister achieve fame in the same sport, especially in the racing racket, but that's what Alfred and Helen Johnson have done. Alfred, pilot of winners in many big races, is wearing the colors of Colonel Bradley, while his sister ranks high on northwest tracks as an amateur.

CARDINAL SPORT TEAMS IN TOUGH WEEKEND BATTLES

Trackmen Take Part in Drake Relays and Diamond Squad Meets Illini

Madison—Wisconsin athletic teams are scheduled to participate in two paramount programs Saturday. The Cardinal track team will compete in the Drake Relays tomorrow while the Badger baseball nine clashes with Illinois at Urbana.

Contrary to previous plans Wisconsin will not be represented in the Penn Relays at Philadelphia. Coach Tom Jones decided Friday. Instead of entering "Chuck" McGinnis, stellar Big Ten performer, and Bob Kruz, javelin ace, in the Eastern track classic, Coach Jones has considered it best that his two stars rest.

The four-mile relay team which romped off with first place at the Ohio gathering last week will represent Wisconsin at Drake Saturday, the personnel of the squad is Petaja, Zola, Bullamore, and Schwenger. Coach Jones is also running his strong one-mile quartet of Smith, Dougan, Stowe, and Kanaz. Payne, Chamberlain, and Erickson will comprise the relay squad that will run in the Drake events. It is questionable if Coach Jones will enter a spring relay squad.

Mayor, who fared well at Ohio last week, will hurl the javelin for the Cardinal at Des Moines. Pahlmeyer, to compete in the high hurdles, and Mosen will probably work the high jump and hurdles.

Following an unfavorable game with Notre Dame last Tuesday in which she was battered into a 6 to 3 defeat, Wisconsin will take the field against the Fighting Illini at Urbana Saturday afternoon intent on recovery into the victory column.

Coach Guy Lowman juggled the pitching staff for the Irish tilt early this week with some noticeable satisfaction, and it is altogether possible that he will speculate with his hurlers when the game is called at Urbana.

Wisconsin is bucking up against no weak competition in Illinois, considering that the Indians submerged Iowa, 6 to 1, this season and a week ago. The Hawkeyes blotted Wisconsin's plate, 4 to 2.

With the conclusion of the Illinois engagement Wisconsin will adjust herself to cope with the Hawkeyes in a return match at Iowa City on Monday afternoon. Strenuous and careful training is expected to fit the Badgers well for this double bill over the week.

They got their first glimpse of American football when they watched "Fop" Warner put his grid outfit through spring practice a few days ago.

Their verdict practically amounted to this: It may be great collegiate sport here, but it is a lot of pineapples to them!

"When we fight, we use bayonets," exclaimed Captain T. Yamuro, after watching the husky Cardinal squad in action. "Athletics to us are for play."

The INSIDE BASEBALL BY BILLY EVANS

1. What are the restrictions as to the size of glove that can be used?
2. What is the distance from the home plate to the pitcher's box?
3. What is the regulation distance for a home run over the fence or into the stands?
4. What is the size of the pitcher's plate or rubber?

THIS TELLS IT

1. There is no limit as to the size of the glove that can be worn by catcher or first baseman. Other players are restricted to a glove or mitt weighing not over 16 ounces or measuring over 14 inches around the palm.
2. Sixty feet, six inches.
3. The shortest distance for a regulation homer is 235 feet.
4. The batter's box is a rectangle measuring six feet by four feet.
5. The pitcher's rubber measures 24 inches by 6 inches.

That looks like war and war is business.

You can imagine what a shock the sons of Nippon received when they were informed that a lot of baseball players, tennis players, golfers and Red Granges made quite a handsome living following some sport as a business.

American football will never take a firm hold in Japan because the Japanese like quickness and skill in their sports, he said.

The Waseda team, after meeting Stanford, will play in other California towns against leading college teams, and will then trek across the continent for games with college teams in Salt Lake, Chicago and Toronto. They will meet Yale, Harvard, West Virginia and the Marine Corps before they start their trip back.

On the return they'll meet Chicago, Butler, Indiana and the Washington Huskies, the latter series concluding their trip and allowing them to sail for home late in June, via Hawaii.

GENE TUNNEY GIVES RULES FOR SUCCESS

No Smoking or Drinking, Will to Win Emphasized by World's Champ

Dayton, O.—Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion of the world, broke his characteristic silence here and told some 5000 news-carriers the way to success, when he was here recently.

Climbing from a marine who fought for $30 a month to the gentleman of the ring with a million-dollar valuation on his services, Gene Tunney's admonition appeared to register.

The first bit of advice he gave was not to smoke, because, he said, smoking kills the appetite and three square meals a day are absolutely necessary to proper development.

"Early to bed" was Tunney's second tip.

"Never take a drink of alcoholic liquor," was next in line.

Fourth in his catechism was this: "Don't use profane language. It's a vulgarity for cowards only."

And lastly: "Have the will to win and you'll win."

That looks like war and war is business.

You can imagine what a shock the sons of Nippon received when they were informed that a lot of baseball players, tennis players, golfers and Red Granges made quite a handsome living following some sport as a business.

American football will never take a firm hold in Japan because the Japanese like quickness and skill in their sports, he said.

The Waseda team, after meeting Stanford, will play in other California towns against leading college teams, and will then trek across the continent for games with college teams in Salt Lake, Chicago and Toronto. They will meet Yale, Harvard, West Virginia and the Marine Corps before they start their trip back.

On the return they'll meet Chicago, Butler, Indiana and the Washington Huskies, the latter series concluding their trip and allowing them to sail for home late in June, via Hawaii.

EAST HIGH TRACK MEN WORK FOR MEET

Red Will Have Strong Team
in Track Events in Quad at DePere

Green Bay — More than 40 East High athletes are being primed this week for their first inter-scholastic field and track meet which will be held Saturday. Some of the events will be run off in the morning while the remainder will be held in the afternoon at the Northeastern Wisconsin fair grounds.

The Hilltopper tracksters that placed last week in the inter-class meet were selected to represent the school in Saturday's classic and if they are anywhere near right, East should breeze home with more than its share of points.

If the East Siders' opening meet is any criterion, they will be strong in the track events but rather weak in the field contests. In the former class, the Red and White school has the Collard brothers, Capt. Coel, Konowolski, Shekore, Klaus, La Belle, Siebel, Schilke, Dunli, Bishop, Jensen, Boehm, Bader and Timmers. North, Collard, Coel, Konowolski and Skedore are the ones upon whom East is pinning their strongest hope. Collard placed a few times last year in the 440-yard dash, but since that time he has cut his time down to 54.2.

Konowolski, although he had little competition last week, pranced the mile in 4:53 but this Saturday when he will be under pressure, he should knock a few seconds off that time. Coel should make the contestants in the half mile step right along. He can "waddle" around the course at about 2:20. Skedore, who is expected to come through with a point or two in the coming meet, runs the century race in a hurry.

APPLETON FIGHT FANS TO OSHKOSH TONIGHT

Appleton fight fans, always enthusiastic about a good fight card, will hop into their cars Friday evening bound for Oshkosh, when the American Legion of that city is staging one of its usual good shows. The main go is between Sully, Montgomery and Centro college grid star, and Farmer Lodge of St. Paul, both title contenders for a short time, and evenly matched. Earl Fuller, matchmaker of the Oshkosh club, says that anyone traveling to the Sawdust city Friday evening will witness a "string" of bouts never surpassed in the Valley.

ILLINOI CONFIDENT OF WIN OVER BADGER NINE

Chicago—(P)—Competing with the golf, tennis, spring football and track squads of the Big Ten this weekend are the conference ball players with a four-game schedule.

Illinois the conference leader with three victories and Ohio, sharing the top with two wins, apparently have easy games. The Illinois entertain Wisconsin and Minnesota opens its conference season at Ohio. The Badgers have one of the best southpaws in the conference in Captain Stoll, but Iowa hammered out a victory over him and Illinois made it 6 to 1 over Iowa.

The Ohioans have one of the best pitching corps and one of the best fielding combinations. With a 3-0 record, the team's present shortstop, will be shifted to third base. Flowers has been with the Cardinals for several years but never broke into the infield as a regular. Last season while Rogers Hornsby was out of the game, Flowers was assigned to second base.

Philadelphia—(P)—One of the greatest amuses of athletics ever gathered for a track and field meet was here Friday to test its speed, strength and skill in the thirty-third annual relay carnival at the University of Pennsylvania. The entry list of approximate 350 individuals representing most of the leading colleges and schools of this country. Cambridge University, England, and the Delta Collegiate institute of Canada, was not only the largest in the history of the meet but also included an unusually large number of stars. Among them were many considered capable of record breaking performances, both on the track and in the field.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

T. Q. CURTIS, millionaire department store owner, asks his women employees to answer a questionnaire. Billy Wells, pretty little head of the glove department, answers the questions, hoping thereby to win one of the prizes offered. She answers the questions, and truthfully, while NYDA LOMAX and WINNIE SHELTON, co-workers, lie to gain their employer's favor.

CLAY CURTIS, one of Old T. Q.'s boys, Billy not to land in the questionnaire. Clay has disinterested himself and is now living with the Wells family in a poor section of the town, working in a factory by day and writing music at night. Both he and Billy believe the old man is "up to" something.

STANLEY POWERS, who has been rushing Billy, accompanies her to the thirtieth anniversary celebration at which the prizes are to be announced. She is bored with Powers and glad when her turn on the program is announced. She plays a violin solo and her thoughts drift unaccountably to Old T. Q.'s struggles, his success, his loss of his son. When she gets back stage after her performance, she leans against the wall and tears come to her eyes. There old Curtis finds her. He announces the prize winners and Billy has won three prizes. He asks the winner to meet him for a few minutes in the classroom.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER X

Billy Wells was conscious that the girls and women, winners in the questionnaire contest, made a pretty picture in their evening dresses as they flattered about T. Q., thanking him, flattering him, hanging on his few words.

Billy did not flutter. She did not even go up to him to thank him. She slipped into one of the class-room chairs and waited till T. Q. had sent the other girls to their seats. He wasted few words. That was one reason why she admired him.

"Now, ladies," T. Q. said, when the fluttering had died down. "I didn't just ask you here to be thanked and to give you your prize money. You'll find that in your pay envelopes Monday. When I read your answers to the questions that must have seemed foolish to some of you, and the good, common sense letters that you wrote me, I was struck by the thought that I have a mighty intelligent bunch of women and girls working with me."

T. Q. never said "for me"—it was always "with me."

"Some of your suggestions made me do a lot of thinking. For thirty years I've been piling up money, until I'm afraid I've cheated the poor house out of a boarder. And I began to wonder what I'd got out of it—not the work for I've enjoyed every bit of that, but the money. I began to wonder what I could do with some of that money to give the most happiness at the least risk to the largest possible number of people."

T. Q. paused, and there was a moment of complete silence, broken only by the sharply indrawn breath of some excited girl. That familiar wry smile of his tugged at a corner of the old man's lips.

"Now, don't jump to the conclusion that I'm planning to give all my money away. I'm not. But it occurred to me that twenty-five intelligent, clever ladies like you—and I bowed, still smiling a little sarcastically—could teach me a few things about the use of money. I don't want you to tell me how you'd spend my money, whatever that sum may be, but I would like to know how every one of you would use a hundred thousand dollars—if you had it."

"I'm not going to ask you to tell me now what you'd do with a hundred thousand dollars," T. Q. went on, grinning more broadly. "But I am going to ask you to write me a letter in which you will tell me just how you would use it. If any of you decide that you would spend it for personal pleasure, tell me just how you would spend it. If any of you decide you'd give it away, tell what disposition you would make of it. I don't want you to think that I'm going to feel obligated to follow any of the suggestions that I may get from your letters, and I must add, lest you get a wrong impression from a foolish old man's whim, that I'm not going to give a hundred thousand dollars as a prize for the best letter."

Several girls laughed nervously at that, and again T. Q. grinned with them.

"Only the twenty-five prize winners of the first contest are eligible in this second contest. Now, all you have to do is to write me a letter, as short as you like, but no more than 500 words long, answering the question, 'What I would do with a hundred thousand dollars.'

"There will be ten prizes, and I am going to ask you to trust me when I say that those prizes will be well worth working for. Now, for your guidance, I've had a memorandum of the terms of the contest drawn up, and I'd like for each of you to take one home with you. But I also want to ask you not to discuss this new contest with anyone outside this room for the rest of the evening. Now, trot along, all of you, and have a good time at the dance."

Billy sat quite still as the other girls and women crowded about the table. So old T. Q. had been up to something after all. But what? What was this absurd contest about a hundred thousand dollars?

dollars leading up to? Had he taken leave of his senses, she asked herself indignantly.

"A dollar prize I get after sitting up half the night working over his old questionnaire—he's gone batty, if you ask me. I wouldn't waste ink on this fool letter."

Billy was roused out of her irritation, puzzling reflections by the high, nasal complaint of the winner of the twenty-fifth prize. She saw the girl tear the sheet of instructions to bits and flung them angrily to the floor. Plain, stout—With a start, Billy let her eyes rove quickly over the group of girls and women at the table. There was something odd about that group. In most gatherings of women the pretty girl stood out. But here—Billy counted swiftly—ten pretty girls in a group of twenty-five. No, eleven, if she counted herself, and in all fairness she should, for she was no fool.

She knew there were at most only three girls in the store prettier than she—Nyda Lomax, Winnie Shelton and Pearl Hadley. And she knew also that in the opinion of many, not all of those three ranked ahead of here in point of beauty. Last year, before Winnie Shelton had come to the Curtis Store, she, Billy Wells, had been voted the most beautiful girl in the store, and crowned the Curtis Queen at the twenty-ninth anniversary celebration.

Eleven pretty girls—beautiful, young girls—out of a plain-looking group of twenty-five. Never before had beauty and brains been found so notably united. What was T. Q. up to?

"Here's a love letter for you," Winnie Shelton ran lightly toward Billy. "Are you going to tell old T. Q. what you would do with a hundred thousand and dollars, Billy? Isn't it a perfect scream? I haven't the faintest idea what to say! But just think, I won twenty-one dollars with my questionaire. Of course, Miss Doran helped me some—with spelling and punctuation and things like that—her little heart-shaped face flushed under Billy's scornful gaze.

"You said you'd give Miss Doran a pair of those French nude stockings if you won a prize, and I think you'd better keep that promise," Billy told her evenly. "Besides, you'll need Miss Doran to help you in this contest—spelling and punctuation and things like that," she emphasized sarcastically.

"You're getting to have the most awful disposition, Billy," Winnie said plaintively. "Of course I'm going to give Miss Doran the stockings. But what are you going to give Clay Curtis for helping you? You said he gave you some good tips."

"I've been wondering what to give him," Billy said coolly. "He needs a suit of good, strong khaki overalls. Oh, Susie!" she raised her voice to call to Susie Howard, winner of the second prize.

"Hello! I've been wondering where you were," Susie turned from the group at the table. "Isn't it a shame I'm leaving the store before this second contest is decided? I don't think it would be fair of me to compete, but the twenty-four dollars I won on the questionnaire will surely come in handy on my trousseau."

"You're leaving so soon?" Billy was surprised. "You're not going to be married until March first, are you?"

"No, but I want to do a lot of sewing before the big day. I want to see you win first prize in this contest. You've got more brains than any of us, Billy. If you will take the trouble to use them. But let's go dance, everybody!" She sprang to her feet and began to dance a few steps of the Charleston.

Next to playing her violin, Billy Wells loved dancing. She had begun to dance as soon as she could walk; her pulses pounded to rhythm; her small, boyish body executed every new dance step as if she had invented it, and she had never taken a dancing lesson in her life.

There were no programs, of course, but she had recklessly promised enough dances to have kept her whirling continuously until dawn. If the Curtis band could have played that long.

She was so happy in the purely physical pleasure of dancing that she had almost forgotten the doubts and half-formed suspicions that had tormented her while T. Q. Curtis talked to his strangely chosen prize-winners, when they all came flooding back at the touch of T. Q.'s hand on her arm.

while she stood beside her partner, applauding for an encore.

"Will you do me the honor?" T. Q. Curtis bowed with punctilious politeness.

The encore was a waltz. To Billy's amazement, old T. Q. danced it well, though he confided to her that he could dance none of the modern steps at all. They danced so well together, in fact, that every other couple on the floor gave them their attention. There was amazement in their interest, too, for T. Q. had never before been known to dance at one of his anniversary parties.

When the music stopped, T. Q. thanked her, then, drawing her hand through his arm, led her toward the doors that communicated with the cafeteria, where the birthday cake was waiting to be cut, and where tables laden with refreshments, supplied by the city's best caterers, invited the hungry revellers.

"I hope you will do me the honor to cut the cake," he told her, in a voice that she had never heard from his lips before—a gentle voice, with a curious note of pleading in it.

She hardly knew whether she answered or not, so heavily was her heart beating, with a sick unwholesome fear. How foolish she was to be afraid of him, just because for a moment he had shown her his soul in his eyes, and had spoken to her in a voice that was gentle and winful—Oh, what was T. Q. up to? She would make Clay talk, tell her what he suspected, feared.

(To Be Continued)

A tender, unforgettable hour for Billy Wells and Clay Curtis in the next chapter.

Does Yours Take the Flop?

SAILINGLY down winter's slope on the high test qualities of Wadhams "370". Then, whoof! Over with a thud to common low grade as soon as warmer weather makes its use a possibility!

Ask some sincere gasoline man for the truth about that springtime flop which some motor owners so gayly face.

Low grades of gas, promiscuously offered to the careless or unwisely "economical" driver, are NOT made motor-fit by mere temperature change. The fact that they can be forced to start is a false index—for not a single basic element that made them useless in winter can be removed by a mark on the calendar. The heavy unburnable elements remain to wreak their damage one season with another. And no giddy springtime leap-the-gap in reasoning can change the facts one iota.

Year-around users of

Wadhams 370
High test that IS high test

know year-around satisfaction without jarring letdown in performance or in motor safety.

The thermometer's rise is thrifly converted at the carburetor into still greater mileage. Warm-up is instantaneous. First-touch starting ease. And above all—the outstanding economy of full motor protection under every condition!

And its cost is now no more than ordinary "high".

The 120th Field Artillery band under the direction of Edward F. Mumm will give an opening concert and will accompany the audience in its opening of "America" and "The Star Spangled Banner." P. O. Keiser, valley executive of the Boy Scouts of America, will give the invocation, and E. C. Smith, chairman of the day, will give the address of welcome.

A roll call of societies will be read by Mrs. Clyde Cavert, secretary of the committee on arrangements. A woman's trio including Miss Maud Harwood, Mrs. E. E. Dunn, and Mrs. Stewart Luchene will sing "The Earth is Decided with Beauty" by W. Maase, arranged by Frank Lynes, and "The Invitation" by August Wever.

The National Fraternal congress an international association of fraternal benefit societies, is the sponsor of the day.

Miss Dina M. West, first president of the National Fraternal congress of America inaugurated "Fraternal Day" during her term in 1925.

It aims to "revive the spirit of brotherhood and sisterhood and to strengthen the public belief in the perpetuity of the fraternal benefit system."

"The sincere cooperation of every order in our city will go far toward the realization of that purpose, which will result in lasting benefit to all of us," Mrs. Cavert said.

Beware Of Letter Ruse, Stenographers Are Warned

Office girls Friday were warned by police to beware of the old "special delivery letter" ruse.

It was worked in many offices here Thursday, and police fear that unless extreme caution is exercised by office forces, the perpetrators of the trick may succeed in getting away with some large sums of money.

Here is the way it is done, according to police:

A man calls up an office, and tells the girl who answers the telephone that there is a special delivery letter waiting for her in such and such a store or office, usually nearby. The letter apparently is urgent and should be called for at once, the girl is told.

As soon as she leaves her office to get the letter, a companion of the telephoner, who was loitering in the hall, enters the office and ransacks the desks and cabinets.

The ruse was employed in nine or ten places Thursday, reports received by police indicate, but in no instance was any large amount of money taken.

If people would remember the method employed by the postoffice in

WANT REVISION OF INSURANCE LAWS

Legislature Gets Bill Asking for Interim Committee Investigation

Madison, (AP)—The assembly committee on public welfare has added three proposed laws to the host which must be considered before Wisconsin legislators may return to their homes. The laws would be exempt from payment of license fees for retailing non-intoxicating liquor under one of the bills.

A joint resolution by the committee asks an interim committee of this legislature to report in 1929 on revisions and betterments in the state's insurance laws. The resolution holds that the insurance regulatory statutes "are in great need of this revision in order to meet present day conditions," and that it "is impossible for this legislature or any committee thereof to properly undertake within one session."

The third measure provides that the governor may not appoint any members of the legislature to office during the members' term in the legislative bodies.

The Koenig bill for regulation of automobile common carriers was referred to the transportation committee Thursday, when it was brought upon the floor for enactment.

The committee bill appropriating $12,000 to the conservation commission for purchase of four trucks to be used in transporting fish was ordered engrossed as the bill for abolition of state-owned cars was introduced.

Fourteen bills were given final approval. None of them made major changes in the state laws.

AMERICA MUST BE PATIENT TO KEEP CHINESE FRIENDLY

International Relations Club Hears Address on Situation in Far East

The struggle in China today is not primarily a military one, this is only a transient phase but it is a tremendous upheaval of the whole social structure, Dr. Edward H. Hume, formerly president of Yale in China, said in an address on the Chinese situation at a meeting of the International Relations club Thursday evening at the Lawrence college library.

In a short time the military struggle will be over, but a short time may mean several years, from the Chinese conception of time, the speaker said. But the military side of the upheaval is not the real conflict.

URGENT PATIENCE

Patience toward China now will pave the way to a real friendship with the country commercially and politically, Dr. Hume believed.

China feels that we have joined with the others, the imperialists which have had power in China for many years, she will become distrustful of America. Before the Versailles treaty in 1919, China felt that America was her best friend, today she is not sure, Dr. Hume said he would like to see the state department reduce the military and naval forces because better friends are made when one hasn't a gun in each hand. He would like to have the department proclaim that force will be used only to protect life and property, and most particularly life, for the Chinese would then have greater trust in us.

A greater understanding of the problem will be necessary in this country before there can be real friendship with China. But if Americans have patience now they will be able to get on the ground floor as the Germans are doing.

NOTES WERE WRONG

The notes sent to China by the United States and other powers demanding retribution, punishing of the guilty and other demands were lacking in imagination, the speaker believed. China had already apologized for some of the actions of the people, and there was no need of the American demand. It will not help to make friendly relations later, he stated.

Underlying things in the Chinese philosophy are expressed in the first three sentences of the Chinese classics, or teachings of Confucius. These are "The master said to learn and ever to renew that learned. This is real joy." "To have friends come from afar. This is real pleasure." "He who recalls off meeting to select boys worker

The meeting of the boys' work committee of the Y. M. C. A., scheduled for Thursday evening, was postponed because of the play, "Damon and Pythias," which was presented by the local Knights of Pythias. The committee was to appoint an assistant boys' work secretary for the summer and discuss the boys' camp problems. An attempt will be made to hold the meeting early next week, according to John W. Pugh, boys' work secretary.

PUBLISHING COMPANY MOVES TO NEW OFFICES

The Retail Publishers, Inc., publishers of six magazines, will move Saturday from their present quarters in the insurance building to larger rooms above the E. W. Shannon Office Supply Co., store at 300 E. College-ave. The publishers have leased the second floor of the building. They will occupy four offices and another large room will be used for a storeroom. Magazines published by the company are the Badger Legionnaire, Wisconsin Retail Merchants Advocate, the Wisconsin Magazine, Wisconsin Master Builder, the E-G Builder and the Agrigator. Mr. Shannon is planning to remodel the front of his store on the first floor.

SPEEDER ADMITS GUILT AND GETS USUAL FINE

George Vanderlinde, 120 E. Fremont-st., was fined $10 and costs Friday morning in municipal court for speeding. He was arrested Thursday evening on E. Pacific-st. by officer Gus Hersekorn and charged with traveling 34 miles an hour.

He is the real prince.

Germany is trusted by China today.

The Germans go about with armbands saying "I am a German" and they can do as they will with no interference. "The country that wants to have the good will of China wants to make friends soon," Dr. Hume believed.

Britain has had hard luck with China because of its decades of imperialistic policy. Since 1922 when the British first went there, the Chinese have been piling up charges against the British policies. The Chinese memory is long, and each incident of commerce in China of the two countries, it is a question if they will be able to hold their liberal policies, he said.

Dr. Hume came to Lawrence through the auspices of the Carnegie association for International Peace. He is reputed to be the best informed man in the world on the Chinese situation. Questions on China were answered by the speaker at the close of his address.

ARRESTED FOR CARRYING 4 IN FRONT SEAT OF CAR

Carrying three passengers besides himself in the front seat of his automobile cost Forest Muck, 218 S. Oak-st., $10 and costs Friday morning when arraigned in municipal court before Judge Theodore Berg. He was arrested Thursday afternoon on N. Oneida-st. by Officer Gus Hersekorn. Police have warned that carrying four passengers in the front seat of an automobile is reckless driving.

Five warrants were served Tuesday, but in each instance the owner promised to secure his license at once, and he was given time to do so. Owners of dogs should have paid for their licenses weeks ago, police point out, and all those who did not do so will be arrested.

THE ROAD TO BEAUTY IS FIVE MILES LONG

This clear soap cleanses your millions of pores thoroughly

Every woman admits that clear, healthy pores are the foundation of beautiful skin, and there are 5 miles of them in your body. Beauty experts say that Jap Rose is the one soap that cleanses them most thoroughly and does not clog them. That is because its ingredients (so pure you can see through them) dissolve perfectly in water and enter and cleanse the tiniest pores that coarser soaps would clog. After it cleanses, Jap Rose stimulates circulation. You can tell that by the temporary tingle that follows its first use. The tingle is a sign that your skin is getting healthier—and prettier. Get Jap Rose today.

She Drove 60 Miles

Last Saturday, a lady who lives in a city about 30 miles from Appleton, came into our store and placed an order for several choice steaks. She told us that she wanted them especially fine, because she was giving a dinner and wanted it to be perfect in every respect.

We are not flattering ourselves by thinking that she drove 60 miles for Voecks Bros. Steaks alone — but we do know that they influenced her to a great extent.

And this same meat, that women come many miles for, can be had every day at

New Orthophonic Victor Records

Just Released

20305—Your Land and My Land—Fox Trot
Silver Moon—Waltz Nat Shilkret and the Victor Orchestra
A fox trot and a waltz from the Sigmund Romberg success, "My Maryland." The first number is based upon patriotic melodies, some of which are introduced in obvious fashion, while others are only suggested. The general style of the dance is rather that of the "march fox trot," and the brass instruments appropriately figure with prominence. There is a vocal refrain for three solo voices. The companion number is a slow, smooth waltz in the current manner, with two or three melodies all going at once and all making appropriate and musically interesting harmony.

20514—Everything's Made for Love—Fox Trot
Forgive Me—Fox Trot Nat Shilkret and the Victor Orchestra
Musicians, dancers, critics and simple listeners who have followed the fortunes of fox trot music in the United States, will revel in these two new numbers by master orchestras. Both are strong-toned, heavily scored, full of color, and exhibit powerful rhythms of the type that almost lift dancers from their feet. The first is rich in violin and trombone harmonies, and has a specially fine two-voice break. The second is of melodious type, introduces Lewis James in a vocal refrain, and exhibits, following the singer, some comedy effects not too usual in Shilkret recordings. There is some splendid ringing trumpet work. In orchestral handling, these two numbers as nearly approach the ideal in fox trot orchestration, as anything in conductors' vision.

20493—A Little Birdie Told Me So—Fox Trot
Sunny disposition—Fox Trot Jean Goldkette and His Orchestra
"Peggy Ann" supplies the music for the first of these fox trots, in which Johnny Marvin sings against music of a snappy, curt, almost peremptory type. The record is well scored and the rhythm is pronounced throughout. The companion number is also interesting, from its employment of the double bass, and the circumstance that its vocal refrain calls for a full quartet of male voices (Harrison, Glenn, James and Shaw).

20512—The Desert Song—Waltz
Huguette—Waltz from "The Vagabond King"
Two dance waltzes from the big musical successes of recent months—the "Desert Song" and "The Vagabond King." Both are highly melodious compositions, of far higher class than the ordinary "jazz waltz," and both are scored for the orchestra with a richness and variety of color unexcelled by anything in recent music. In the first one Franklyn Baur sings a vocal refrain. The second introduces odd minor melody, and some beautiful string effects. There is so much fine workmanship in the scoring of these numbers that all musicians will give them double appreciation; but they are so obvious and "popular" in style, for all that, that dancers will enjoy them quite as much, without going into their intimacies of detail.

As Wise as Solomon
A young girl was suing an insurance company, claiming that she had suffered lasting injuries in an accident.

The lawyer stepped forward, and before the girl herself, or anyone else in the courtroom knew what he was about, he had planted a kiss on her surprised lips.
The girl kicked back her right foot—and he won his case!"

Rundown Farmer's Wife Found Dreco Just What She NeededNow tells how it quickly built her up and ended all her suffering.

"Since using Dreco I can heartily recommend it to anyone suffering as I did," says Mrs. H. L. Schultz, wife of the well-known Little Chute, Wis. farmer in a recent talk with the Dreco man at Schilts Bros. Drug Store.

"I used to be so nervous any sudden noise would make me jump and I didn't know what it was to get a sound night's sleep I tossed and rolled so restlessly. I also suffered with severe pains in my back and side and was almost doubled in two with cramps at times. My head ached fearfully and female disorders had me badly worried."

"I tried everything but the first and only thing to help me was Dreco. This wonderful remedy quickly went to the root of my troubles and now I feel as well as anyone could ask. I don't know what it is to suffer from headaches, backaches or cramps anymore and I sleep like a rock from the time I go to bed until the alarm wakes me in the morning. My nerves have been strengthened, the female troubles have been relieved, I'm eating better than in years and actually enjoy doing my work around the house."

Dreco, the herbal remedy that did so much for this party is a vegetable remedy containing no mercury, iron, potash nor acids or oils. It acts on the stomach to assist it to digest the food, rouses a sluggish liver to full action, strengthens the kidneys, quiets the nerves, induces sound sleep, expels catarrh of the nose and stomach and rebuilds a rundown system.

Mr. H. W. C. Marx Baker, the well-known Expert from the Dreco Laboratories now at Schilts Bros. Drug Store, is selling scores of people every day how to take Dreco for best results. Go to see him.
